

Flagship academy

Worcester, Bosch Group has reaffirmed its commitment to installer, specifier and merchant training with the opening of a brand new £1.5 million training facility at its headquarters in, Worcester.

The facility includes a life-sized single storey brick building equipped with a number of fully operational Greenskies solar thermal systems, a scaffolded high-level walkway giving the training delegates a real experience of working with solar at a height and training bays featuring every model from Worcester's Greenstar boiler range.

It will come as no surprise that the entire training academy is heated and cooled using a variety of Worcester's heating technologies, which further demonstrates the benefits of an energy-efficient system in action.
